Section 1 Policy, Rights, and Responsibilities [1]

The British Columbia Conservation Foundation (BCCF) Safety Manual aims to assist employees and contractors in understanding and performing their occupational health and safety responsibilities. It also provides resources to assist in obtaining compliance with the Workers Compensation Act (WCA) and Occupational Health and Safety Regulation (OHSR). It is important to remember that each workplace will have its own specific hazards and with thus require the identification of hazards and any corresponding areas of legislation that apply.

The Safety section of the BCCF website contains documents/templates and videos that are relevant to workers. The sections are layed out in the same order as the Health and Safety Manual. [2] There are certain sections that are not included on the website as they do not contain documents that workers need regular access to.
